

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

The rotation transmitting device comprises a pulley connected to a shaft so as not to rotate relatively, and a supporter for supporting the pulley rotatably through a bearing. The bearing 26 is incorporated into the pulley such that the fitting position of the bearing becomes inside both end edges of the outer periphery of the pulley in the direction of the rotation axis of the pulley.